Current role

Justice Health and Forensic Mental Health Network, NSW February 2022 – present
Health Chief Executive

- The Chief Executive leads, directs and provides strategic direction for the governance and management of the Justice Health and Forensic Mental Health Network (the Network) and workforce to deliver and monitor effective high quality health care services to patients who come into contact with the NSW forensic mental health and criminal justice systems, across community, inpatient and custodial settings.
- The Chief Executive is responsible for the management of relationships with key government stakeholders within the custodial and forensic mental health environments such as the Department of Communities and Justice, Corrective Services NSW, Coroners Court and Audit Office of NSW to ensure the delivery of health care, the goals of the NSW Health future health Strategy and NSW Health's objectives.
- Reporting to the Network Board and accountable to the Secretary, NSW Health, this key senior executive role represents an exceptional opportunity to drive the enhanced performance of the Justice Health and Forensic Mental Health Network through strategic leadership as well as sound clinical and corporate governance.
